In our modern, dynamic world, one of the most important and sought-after achievements of technology has become the ability to buy everything you need online. Online stores have become a great and convenient place to shop, offering an endless selection of goods and services available in just few clicks.

The diagram shows that books, movies, music and games are most often bought in online stores as they do not require special attention to details and features, while electronics, clothes, cosmetics, sport equipment are bought in the stores themselves because they require their own and personal inspection of each product, for example: You won't buy a phone without holding it in your hands and trying out its functionality.

I prefer to buy goods in an online store, it makes it easier to find things you need, allows you to use discounts and various referral systems. But unfortunately, buying online does not guarantee you quality and reliability and sometimes people fall into traps and do not receive their goods. Therefore, always buy on trusted marketplaces.

Nevertheless, online shopping continues to gain popularity and become an integral part of our consumer culture. Online stores offer us unlimited possibilities and convenience, helping us to save time and money. Often, they are also accompanied by various promotions and special offers, making purchases even more attractive.
